During the Three Kingdoms (三国) period (220-280 AD) in China, warlords fought amongst themselves and outwitted each other for sovereignty and land in China.

The realization of the three kingdoms (曹魏Wei, 蜀汉Shu and 东吴Wu) became ultimately a competition of supreme leadership skills.

This seminar approaches the concept of leadership from the valuable insights gained during Sanguo Zhi (三国志, The Three Kingdoms Era). You will study leadership style from the 2 prominent figures, Liu Bei (刘备) and Zhuge Liang (诸葛亮), and analyse their value proposition which is still relevant in today's context.

What You'll Take Home

Upon completion of this seminar, you will be able to:

- ① Understand the leadership style of Liu Bei & Zhuge Liang, both are the most prominent figure from the Three Kingdom.
- ② Compare the leadership style with some of the modern ones prevalent today.

Testimonials

❖ This was one course that I enjoyed thoroughly, for the content, for Anson was very well-versed on this subject and made the course an interesting one relating it very well to the modern day context.

Thank you so much to Anson for introducing this part of Chinese history and pitching it at the right level. I was raving about being a mix of Cao Cao and Zhuge Liang characteristics to my Chinese colleagues. They were certainly very intrigued by all my sharing.

❖ I have learnt the five things to tell my employees on making the transition. You need “Acting” skills to play your role right, this is very important.

Anson is very knowledgeable and passionate about the subject matter. He can quote Three Kingdoms Era like a guru. Solid!
