Course Synopsis

Men and women as groups tend to have different communication and work styles. Men are engage in the hierarchical social order in which they are either "one up or one down" in relation to others. Their communication styles and reactions to others' communications often stress the need to "preserve independence and avoid failure".

Women on the other hand tend to see the world as a "network of connections" and their communications and their interpretations of others' communications seek to "preserve intimacy and avoid isolation".

Both men and women have differing strengths that complement one another. Understanding and utilising the strengths of both genders in the workplace will empower teams to become more productive and build stronger relationships. In our course, we will teach you how to tap on gender differences to enhance productivity in the workplace.

This course will help you understand their basic differences in world view and behavior and to see how this can help create new opportunities for men and women to utilize and value the different strengths each bring to the workplace and to work together as a team.

Course Objectives

By the end of the Course, participants should be able to:
